

[00:00:00.410] - Speaker 1

On this bonus episode of That's Hysterical, Now, Get Out. I wanted to pop in and give you a between the Seasons update on That's Hysterical, Now, Get Out Season 2, which is coming in March. Season 1 wrapped up being the weeks between getting the okay for the hysterectomy and the pre-up appointment. And season two is going to pick up right where that pre-up appointment left off. And has about 22, 23 episodes detailing my journey all the way up until the big day, Eviction Day. Hystorectomy day. Let's go. And spoiler alert for upcoming seasons. The hysterectomy went well, as you can tell from my voice. I'm recording this as I'm recording Season 4, actually. I think one of my favorite things to announce about the podcast as I've been recording Future episodes following the hysterectomy and following the weeks after the hysterectomy is being able to say that this is one of those success stories that I was looking for when I finally decided that a hysterectomy was the only way to deal with my adenomyosis. I'll give you another spoiler. Also endometriosis, which they found when they did my hysterectomy. So not only am I an adenomyosis warrior, but I'm also an endometriosis warrior.

[00:01:35.440] - Speaker 1

I'm really excited to bring this podcast to you, and I hope this podcast helps you in some way. As I mentioned, Season 2 will be coming in March of 2024. If you're not already following this podcast or subscribe to it in your podcast app or however you listen, make sure you're doing that so that you get new episodes as soon as they're released. You can also follow that This Hysterical podcast on Instagram for updates about the show. If you'd like to share your story about adenomyosis, endometriosis, and other painful uterus ailments, maybe your hysterectomy success story, Check out the link in the show notes to find out how you can do that. I'd love to make that a part of the show as well so that it's not just me giving support to people who may also be going through the things that, well, you might be if you're listening to One of the great things about podcasts is, even though we may not be face to face or going through the same thing at the same time, these stories help so many people wherever they are in their journey. So check out the show notes of this episode for how to share your story or go to thatstericalpodcast.

[00:02:51.600] - Speaker 1

Com. Thanks for listening and take care.