

That's Hysterical! Now, Get Out!

Season 1 | Episode 11

Fishing for the Fallen Menstrual Cup (IYKYK)

15 more days until eviction day. On this episode of That's hysterical, now get out. This is going to be a very quick one. It is just a quick, I don't know, I think, realization, excited realization. When I was in the bathroom last and I did the thing I have done more than once, more than twice. I've been emptying out my menstrual cup and there goes the menstrual cup into the toilet and I have lost it and I have to put my hand in and find it and hope for the best. I have to have that ongoing question of, should I just put my hand in now and not think about what's in there and just wash my hand off without thinking about it? Or do I finish up what I'm doing, look in there and then get the cup and then it's... Believe it or not, I've had this debate a few times, but this was the one time I was like, this is the last time I'm doing it. Maybe, who knows? I have one more day of this period, so we have one more day. So we have 24 hours, more of another chance of that, but hopefully not.

Hopefully, that was the last time I dropped my menstrual cup in the toilet while I was changing it into a toilet full of the stuff that was in there and more. And I've had to reach my hand in and I've had to wash it really well. I've had to get the cup and hopefully that was the last time. The last time. Some of you know the thrill of that feeling. Some of you never thought you had to think about that before. Some of you may have never understood the appeal of menstrual cups for just that reason of getting your hands all dirty. But for me, actually, one of the funny things, the menstrual cup caused fewer cramps than tampons. I'll never understand that. I had a lot of pain reduction when I went from tampons to the menstrual cup. I thank that menstrual cup a lot. Considering how much I was bleeding at some point. It felt like the more ecological choice, to be perfectly honest. I'm one of those people where if somebody starts talking about, Oh, I'm thinking of going to the menstrual cup, I'll be like, Oh, my gosh, it's so great.

I love it. I love it. It's so great. Except for when you drop it in the toilet and you have to get it. But once again, this might be the last time that is my problem. And that is my joy, my glimmer for this episode. Fifteen more days until eviction day. Take care, folks.
